

“Thank You Ain’t Enough”
By Jesse Wayne Taylor

Shopping at the grocery store
They announced there was a war
I could feel a tear roll down my face
Is this the time they'd call your name
Would our lives ever be the same?
I'm standing here asking God for Grace

That big greyhound pulled off, leaving me alone
I can't wait for you to get back home

I haven't walked in your shoes
I don't know what you've been through
I only know that I miss you and everything you do
Every day since you left has been rough
I can't find the words to say it's so tough
Thank you ain't enough

Seeing your face on the screen
Coming home feels like a dream
A blast nearby brings me back to earth
Combat dust and mortar rounds
Reminds me that I'm duty-bound
Love hurts but you gotta' make it work

I haven't walked in your shoes
I don't know what you've been through
I only know that I miss you and everything you do
Every day since you left has been rough
I can't find the words to say it's so tough
thank you ain't enough

Doesn't matter what we go through
Just know that I need you
